Mickey

It appears the insulation is fiberglass. It costs about about $26 for a 3 hour turnaround.

The scraping of the ASTs that you can not use is not a issue unless the ASTs in the North Tank Farm insulation contains ACM. If Lonestar is interested in the ASTs you will have to make the ACM determination. The Trustee does not have the funds to address the ACM issue if present. Please notify me of your intent.

Mickey, I have a copy of the RCRA empty container guidance. I thought you said you could get a "waiver" from the TCEQ, specific to what we proposed on moving the tanks and if we needed to scrap some out. This also doesn't address the asbestos issue that the Texas Department of Health requires. We can't move on this until we have a certain course that will not result in any violations with the agency policies. Thanks.

Will,

For whatever reason Mickey could not get email to go through to either you, Larry or I. I had him send information to my wife's email and that worked.

Please see the email path concerning the AST's at CES site.

Thanks

Dean

Mickey,

I checked with Nicole Bealle and she said that the ASTs should be empty and not contain any liquids during move/transport.

Thank you,

Terry

Terry,

Thanks for the Regulatory Guidance Document (RG480). The ASTs are RCRA Clean, will be shipped to permitted disposal facility (Lonestar Ecology) for reuse. You will be notified prior to implementing the removal activities and provided a copy of the Bankruptcy Court's approval post the Trustee's receipt thereof.

Mickey,

By "RCRA clean" do you mean "RCRA empty" status? Please see that attached guidance for dealing with empty waste containers. Note that there are additional requirements if a container stored an acutely hazardous material. Is this being done through the bankruptcy trustee?

Thanks,

Terry

Terry,

Lonestar Ecology is entertaining the possibility of removing the ASTs located at the CES site and erecting the ASTs at their facility. The EPA has completed the removal/disposal of the liquids/sludge's contained within the ASTs and have pressured washed the interiors. The ASTs currently meet the criteria for attainment of RCRA clean status and can be transported to the Lonestar facility. Therefore, other than notifying the TCEQ of Lonestar's removal activities, what are your requirements?
